

Paris, August 5, 2009. Back in Paris, but now as a resident, rather than as a visitor! Lucy's tour in Iraq and my tour as an unaccompanied husband in Portugal are now over. After a few weeks back in the US for (a well earned) home leave, here we are, setting up house and getting to know a new place yet again. As a very first impression of our new town, let me just say that I have been in worse places! Let's see what these coming three years will bring us.

Going back to some old businesses, as soon as I have some time (I am now surrounded by boxes that the movers just delivered to our new house), I will create a new folder on the Stories & Photos page for the photos and the reports of my round the world trip. And I will also create another folder with more pictures of Lucy in Iraq.

Last but not least, soon our lives should return to a bit more of normality. I hope that this fact will also have reflects on the frequency with which we update this site! So stay tuned!

BRgds, Jorge
