

Paris, December 5, 2009. Thanksgiving came, Thanksgiving went! The kids flew over for the occasion, so for a few days we had the family all together again. We also had the pleasure of seeing and entertaining some good friends who visited us from the US. All in all, it was a great time indeed!

Now it's the (short) wait for Christmas. Not my favorite time of the year (as it is widely known), but it will soon come and it will soon be gone as well! I do have to say that Paris looks great these days, with all its Christmas lights and decorations. And the weather has been quite mild as well, so not all is a loss!!!

I will try to come back here with a few more words before Christmas. Until then.

BRgds, Jorge

Previous postcards are filed in Archives & Links.