

Lisbon, January 10, 2011. This is the first Post Card coming to you from Lisbon. As you may have read in the introduction to this site on the Home page, we are now living in this wonderful town. As to be expected, both Lucy and I are ecstatic, and look very much forward to the next three years that we will spend here!

This is also the first Post Card in 2011! The move from Paris to Lisbon kind of "got in the way" of our Christmas season. On some issues that was a good thing, on others it was not. One of the things on the negative side was the fact that this year we did not have a chance to make and send our traditional Christmas card. To all of you, our very best wishes for a wonderful 2011.

Last but not least, news on my book! As expected, the move from Paris to Lisbon will also have a bit of an impact on the completion date for this project. As things look right now, I expect to be done with it by February or March. More on this project of mine in the next Post Card.

Stay tuned. Until the next one. Jorge
