

Chevy Chase, Jan 2, 2015 Happy 2015!

May all our dreams become reality during this year that now begins! ...But to the point, below you will find a few updates on the road trip since my last posting here:

- Just heard from my friends at Ship Overseas: The Mule should be arriving in San Antonio, Chile, sometime next week. So far, so good, guys. Keep up the good work for a just a tiny bit longer...

- I had to re-schedule marginally my plane ride: I am now due to arrive in Santiago on Sunday, Jan 18. If all goes per plans, on Thursday, Jan 22 I should be rolling again, heading south to Ushuaia in Tierra del Fuego.

- In very broad lines, here is the plan for the stages: Santiago, Chile, to Puerto Montt, 1300 miles, 8 days; Puerto Montt to El Calafate, Argentina, 1100 miles, 7 days; El Calafate to Ushuaia and then Rio Gallegos, 1000 miles, 9 days; Rio Gallegos to Buenos Aires, 1800 miles, 9 days. (For a map of this part, see below.) By the end of February I should be in BA. And then it will be Uruguay, and Brazil, and Bolivia, and... I just can't wait any longer!!!

Lastly, the reminder yet again! As I wrote on my previous posting, you can "follow" the ride in real time on my FB page. If you are not a "friend" yet, send me a request, and we'll sort that out immediately! The URL?
www.facebook.com/jorge.serpa.1654

Cheers.